Excerpt: .while interest payments, once the debt has been incurred, are compulsory. Companies heavily laden with charges, or too rashly weakened by dividends, lack buoyancy against storms. The future, the chief consideration with all foresighted management, is then insufficiently provided for, and danger is courted. It is also a fact of importance to the investor that the stock of a company that defers dividends and devotes earnings to building up is fairly certain to appreciate in market price, while no stocks are more productive of losses and dangerous than those paying steady dividends on too narrow margins. Resources and Their Disposition A simple statement of Resources and Their Disposition may be prepared from the balance sheets of the beginning and end of a period to show where the money has come from and where it has gone. At the left of the statement, under Resources, are listed the increases in liabilities and decreases in assets. At the right, under Disposition of Resources, are tabulated the decreases in liabilities and increases in assets. This statement may be usefully amplified by making an inset of the aggregate income and profit and loss accounts for the years covered, to show how the increase or decrease in surplus and reserves was derived. The table of Resources and Their Disposition is a searching analysis--elementary but of great power. One side of it presents the picture of the proceeds of operation, merchandising, and financing; the other exhibits the uses to which...
